GENERAL POLICY:

It is University policy to control the use of its indicia in any commercial, promotional, or private use. Any person, organization, or company wanting to manufacture and/or sell articles/premiums bearing University indicia must be licensed by the University's licensing agent or must purchase these articles/premiums from a manufacturer licensed by the same.

The University will pursue a "no exemption" licensing policy. Manufacturers are not exempt from licensing procedures even if merchandise is produced for resale or used as premiums by the University. For this reason, campus retail outlets will not have any advantage over outside outlets.

The University shall protect its indicia from unauthorized use by auditing the marketplace for infringers. All licenses are required to have sufficient product liability insurance to protect the University from claims, as defined in the licensing agreement.

The administrator of the licensing program will be the Manager: Licensing and Retail Promotions, located in the Office of Business Affairs. The manager will actively seek new licensee and retail outlets and work with these companies and outlets on approved promotions. The manager will assist units in complying with the policy.

University departments, organizations, or merchandise outlets shall not purchase, sell, or use as premiums unlicensed articles.

All items with University indicia which are not for resale or sold at cost or below cost to organizations' membership are not subject to royalty fees.

All items with University indicia purchased or manufactured for resale for a profit are subject to royalty fee regardless how small the net profit.

All items with University indicia sold to the general public are subject to royalty fees regardless if sold at cost, below cost, or for a profit.
