The health and well-being of our students, faculty, and staff is always a priority, and we have worked to ensure that this semester provides students and faculty with learning environments that meet CDC guidelines for social distancing. New classroom technologies allow more classes to be offered completely online or in a blended format, ensuring on-campus classes are held in appropriate classrooms. For changes and updates, regularly check UNO’s COVID-19 FAQs (https://www.uno.edu/covid-19/faqs).

<tr>
<td>Classes</td>
<td>Similar to the fall semester, there are significantly expanded virtual/remote options for the spring semester. Students can create a course schedule reflecting face-to-face, online and hybrid class formats to meet their learning, family, and work needs.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Academic Support</td>
<td>Tutoring and supplemental instruction will be available both on campus and online. The library will be open to provide computers and tablets to students who need them, access to WiFi and on-campus resources. Support for online learning will also be provided.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Facial Coverings</td>
<td>Anyone accessing campus is required to wear a mask or face covering in all shared indoor spaces. We suggest bringing your own face coverings, but they are also available at the bookstore and in vending machines in the library.</td>

SPRING 2021
TEACHING MODES

To ensure the safety of students, faculty and staff during the COVID-19 pandemic:

- Classes will begin on January 29.
- We will offer three teaching modes: Face-to-Face, Online and Hybrid. Each mode is detailed below.
- Regardless of teaching mode, the first eight days of Spring 2021 semester (January 29 - February 13) will be fully online for all classes.
- Beginning the semester online provides the best opportunity for instructors to communicate expectations with their students, review course syllabi and logistics, and share details on course delivery mode.

- Mardi Gras break (February 15 - 16) will proceed as planned. While there will be no spring break, the university will be closed April 2-3 for the Good Friday holiday.
- Final exams will take place May 12 - 18.
- All face-to-face meetings will require masks or facial coverings and will adhere to social distancing (see uno.edu/covid-19 for more information).

Students should register as soon as possible to get into their preferred type of class. Students can contact their advisor with any questions.

FACE-TO-FACE
Traditional in-classroom teaching

All classes meet in person, so students and the instructor are in the same physical space.

ONLINE
No in-person/face-to-face meeting required

Instruction takes place through Moodle, UNO’s learning management system.
Instructors may include the use of other technologies, including Zoom.
Instruction may take place through web-conferencing (synchronous) or on-demand (asynchronous). Please contact your instructor for more information.
At the instructor’s discretion, courses may require proctored online exams, which must be completed within a time frame outlined in the course syllabus.

HYBRID
Blended teaching

Students attend some classes face-to-face and some remotely. The distribution of face-to-face and remote instruction is at the discretion of the instructor.
Face-to-face meetings will take place in scheduled classroom and at scheduled time.
Remote (online) component will take place on-demand (asynchronous) through Moodle and may include web-conferencing (synchronous) through the use of other technologies, including Zoom.
Interactive course components, such as discussions and small group meetings, may take place in real time, synchronously.
