FY25 Bureau of Land Management Plant Conservation and Restoration Management- Bureau wide

Notice seeking applications to increase the national native seed supply chain by working with private industry, federal, state, tribal and other partners. BLM uses the native seed supply to maintain and restore multiple use and sustained yield on public lands including livestock grazing, timber production, wildlife habitat, recreational use, and orphaned well and abandoned mine land reclamation. Improving native seed availability and stability in the market will lead to lower seed costs, lower risk incurred by producers, and more American jobs related to the native seed production pipeline.

Applications are due July 23, 2025. An estimated $14 million is available to fund 50 awards.
